Dear Mr. Weisberg,

When John Kennedy was murdered, I was just 10 yrs old. I understood little of what had actually taken place, but to this day I can recall that it was the first time I had ever seen both my parents crying. Like everyone else, I grew up believing that he had been killed by a lone, crazed assassin, and I never found any reason to question that belief.

Well, about two years ago I had an attack of boredom and searched the house out for something to read. The only book around that I hadn't read was Mark Lane's Rush to Judgment. I was desperate for something to do, so I started reading it. I ended up staying up the whole night reading, and in the morning, both my curiosity and my anger was roused. I realized that there was much more to the assassination than I had been taught, and was enraged that the investigation was obviously a "whitewash". Since that day, I have read everything I could get my hands on about the assassination, including every volume of the Warren Report, and have studied every picture I could find. Since I got such a late start studying the assassination, I only recently got around to reading your "Whitewash" books. They are by far the most detailed, believable and, truthfully, frightening books I have read on the assassination. I spent many sleepless nights with books & pictures spread out on my bed while I took notes. My personal investigation of the assassination has become an obsession and has been a great influence on my life. Before my curiosity was stirred, I was not terribly interested in history or politics. I was a pre-med student with hopes of becoming a surgeon. But once I started reading about the assassination, the involvement of the FBI and CIA and their awesome power, I became involved in politics. Next year I will be entering law school and would eventually like to "run for office." I know I have a somewhat idealistic view of my own potential role in politics, but I really feel that I can, and in fact, must get myself into a position where I have "influence", if I am ever going to actually do something to reopen the investigation & get everything into the open.

Well, I've really gotten carried away in this letter. I really just wanted to express my thanks and admiration for your books. I have read library copies of them, but I would like to get my own copies. I would therefore appreciate it if you would send me information on how to order any books you have written on the assassination. I have enclosed a self-addressed, stamped envelope for your convenience. Also, I realize you have probably gotten many letters from "Assassination buffs", but I wish you would consider this offer; I am quite serious in my investigation and in my desire to see this conspiracy & cover up brought into the open. Therefore, I would like to volunteer myself to help in any research etc. you might need for any future books. This investigation must been carried on, and I would be willing to do anything to help with it. Again, many thanks, and please keep this investigation alive.

Sincerely yours.
